

Progressive Economics Organizations and Websites:

Dedicated progressive economists around the world have formed networks, websites, and think tanks to try to strengthen the availability of alternative economic perspectives. Check out some of these organizations and links for additional reading, analysis, and activism.

Progressive Economics Think Tanks

Several progressive economic think tanks produce regular research and policy proposals. Most of these think tanks offer publications and other resources for free through their websites. Some of the best-known include:

Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives (Canada): www.policyalternatives.ca

Center for Economic and Policy Research (U.S.): www.cepr.net

Center for Popular Economics (U.S.): www.populareconomics.org

Compass (U.K.): www.compassonline.org.uk

Economic Policy Institute (U.S.): www.epinet.org

Financial Markets Center (U.S.): www.fmcenter.org

Levy Economics Institute of Bard College (U.S.): www.levy.org

Political Economy Research Institute (U.S.): www.peri.umass.edu

Schwartz Center for Economic Policy Analysis (U.S.): www.newschool.edu/cepa

United for a Fair Economy (U.S.): www.faireconomy.org

Networks of Progressive Economists

Heterodox economists in most countries have organized themselves to improve cooperation and coordination, and have a more visible presence within the broader economics profession. Most of these organizations offer services and resources to non-specialists, not just to trained economists:

Association for Heterodox Economics (U.K.): www.hetecon.com

Center for the Applied Study of Economics & the Environment (U.S.):
www.case-and-e.org

Conference of Socialist Economists (U.K.): www.cseweb.org.uk

Green Economics Institute (U.K.): www.greeneconomics.org.uk

International Confederation of Associations for Pluralism in Economics (International):
www.icafe.org

Post-Autistic Economic Network (International): www.paecon.net

Progressive Economics Forum (Canada): www.progressive-economics.ca

Society of Heterodox Economics (Australia): c/o www.economics.unsw.edu.au

Union for Radical Political Economics (U.S.): www.urpe.org